I would have to give this some thought. It's not something that we can do ourselves, and we're trying to get out of the business of fundraising – which is how we've produced all our events to date, but our new CEO does not think that is a good use of our time. It is very challenging – I know that! Most of our events are produced for under $15,000 – some are even done on about $5000 or less. So I don't have experience fundraising on the level that you would need.
